ARABL-UH 1130 Arabic Language and Heritage 1 (4 Credits)

Typically offered Fall

This course is the first in a series of courses meant for students who come from Arabic-speaking families and who grew up in an Arabic-speaking environment but have not had sufficient training in Arabic. These courses are designed to help those students master formal Arabic language skills and empower them, as citizens, to become more engaged in their society, culture, and heritage. The series achieves this goal by reactivating the students' acquired but dormant knowledge of their native tongue even as it provides new accessible and relevant instruction in the language.

ARABL-UH 2210J Colloquial Arabic: Emirati Dialect (4 Credits)Typically offered January term

Welcome to #####. Finishing three semesters of MSA at a university is the prerequisites for the course. This course is designed to provide a solid foundation, at the intermediate level according to ACTFL guidelines, in the structure, pronunciation, vocabulary, and Emirati culture. As a conversation-based course, inside and outside class activities will focus on the communicative skills of listening and speaking. However, the skills of reading and writing are necessary as the text is in Arabic with some transliteration and we will place considerable emphasis on active use of the language and its culture in and out of class and in daily HW. The focus of the class will be on developing the automated production skills necessary to function in an Arabic speaking environment. A core component of class is the memorization and recitation of dialogues exemplifying basic grammatical patterns, vocabulary, cultural concepts, expressions and intonation patterns of Emirati Arabic. Outside class activities will include field trips and community interactions that will help learners enjoy an invaluable experience, which will inspire them to open their minds to new experiences and perspectives. Note: Only NYUAD students are eligible to take this course.

ARABL-UH 3401 Hybrid Identities in the Gulf (4 Credits)Typically offered occasionally

This is an advanced-level content course in Arabic designed around the reading of Saud Al Sanousi's novel, The Bamboo Stalk. The course conceives of the novel as a lens onto a rich array of social issues in the contemporary Gulf. As students follow the protagonist's attempts to understand his hybrid identity, they explore broader questions of cultural, linguistic, and religious difference in the Gulf's Arab communities. Through a combination of class discussions, collaborative research into historical details, guest lectures, and social media resources, students will have the chance to contextualize the novel's themes and link them to their own experiences. Students are expected to reach advanced-mid proficiency by the end of the term.
