CLASSICS (CLASS-UA)

CLASS-UA 2 Intensive Elementary Latin (6 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Open to students with no previous training in Latin and to others through assignment by placement test. Given every other year. Spring term only. 6 points. Completes the equivalent of a year's elementary level in one semester.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 3 Elementary Latin I (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Introduction to the essentials of Latin, the language of Vergil, Caesar, and Seneca. Five hours of instruction weekly, with both oral and written drills and an emphasis on the ability to read Latin rather than merely translate it.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 4 Elementary Latin II (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Use of ancient sources. Aeschylus' Seven Against Thebes illustrates what the ancients regarded as problems inherent in political life that, however unsolved, always persisted. Also includes the Oresteia as the first example of a solution, Sophocles’ Oedipus Tyrannus, Aristophanes’ Knights, Plato’s Republic, Aristotles' Politics, and Cicero’s Republic and Laws.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 5 Intermediate Latin: Cicero (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Teaches second-year students to read Latin prose through comprehensive grammar review; emphasis on the proper techniques for reading (correct phrase division, the identification of clauses, and reading in order); and practice reading at sight. Authors may include Caesar, Cicero, Cornelius Nepos, Livy, Petronius, or Pliny, at the instructor’s discretion.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 6 Intermediate Latin: Virgil (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Writings of the greatest Roman poet, focusing on the most generally read portions of his most celebrated poem, the Aeneid. The meter of the poem is studied, and the student learns to read Latin metrically to reflect the necessary sound for full appreciation of the writing. Readings in political and literary history illustrate the setting in the Augustan Age in which the Aeneid was written and enjoyed, the relationship of the poem to the other classical epics, and its influence on the poetry of later times.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 7 Elementary Greek I (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Introduction to the complex but highly beautiful language of ancient Greece—the language of Homer, Sophocles, Thucydides, and Plato. Students learn the essentials of ancient Greek vocabulary, morphology, and syntax. Five hours of instruction weekly, with both oral and written drills and an emphasis on the ability to read Greek rather than merely translate it.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 8 Elementary Greek II (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Reading of Plato’s Apology and Crito and selections from the Republic. The purpose of the course is to develop facility in reading Attic prose. Supplements readings in Greek with lectures on Socrates and the Platonic dialogues.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 9 Intermediate Greek: Plato (4 Credits)

CLASS-UA 10 Intermediate Greek: Homer (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Extensive readings in the Iliad or Odyssey. Proficiency in scansion is expected as well as a good command of Homeric vocabulary. Relevant topics ranging from the Homeric question to problems of oral tradition through the archaeological evidence of Bronze Age Greece and Troy are discussed in class or developed by the student through oral or written reports.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 11 Intermediate Greek: Sophocles, Euripides (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Identical to V30.0210. Of the ancient Greeks' many gifts to Western culture, one of the most celebrated and influential is the art of drama. This course covers, through the best available translations, the masterpieces of the three great Athenian dramatists. Analysis of the place of the plays in the history of tragedy and the continuing influence they have had on serious playwrights, including those of the 20th century.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 12 Greek Drama: Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Detailed study of the epic from its earliest form, as used by Homer, to its use by the Roman authors. Concentrates on the Iliad and the Odyssey of Homer and on Virgil’s Aeneid, but may also cover the Argonautica of the Alexandrian poet Apollonius of Rhodes and Ovid’s Metamorphoses, as well as the epics representative of Silver Latin by Lucan, Silius Italicus, and Valerius Flaccus.

Identical to V57.0206. In the spring of 44 B.C., Julius Caesar was murdered by a group of senators disgruntled with his monarchic ways. However, Caesar’s adoptive son and heir, Octavian, was quickly on the scene and in little more than a decade managed to establish himself as Rome’s first emperor. About three centuries later, Constantine the Great would rise to imperial power and with him came a new state religion—Christianity. This course examines the social and political history of the Roman Empire from the time of Augustus to that ofConstantine and also closely observes the parallel growth of Christianity.

CLASS-UA 210 Represent Ancient Gender Sexuality in Greece & Rome (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
This class deals with the constructions of gender and experiences of sexuality in ancient Greece and Rome. Working with texts and representations from varied discourses such as medicine, law, literature, visual art, and philosophy, students explore the ways in which the ancient Greeks and Romans perceived their own bodies in such a way as to differentiate gender and understand desire. The class also discusses how eroticism and gender support and subvert political and social ideologies.

CLASS-UA 242 Greek History from The Bronze Age to Alexander (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Identical to HIST-UA 200, HEL-UA 242. Until a few decades ago, Greek history began with Homer and dealt narrowly with the Greek world. Thanks to archaeology, the social sciences, and other historical tools, the chronological and geographical horizons have been pushed back. The history of the Greeks now starts in the third millennium B.C. and is connected to the civilization that lay to the east, rooted in Egypt and Mesopotamia. This course traces Greek history from the Greeks’ earliest appearance to the advent of Alexander.

CLASS-UA 243 The Greek World: Alexander to Augustus (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
Continuation of the history of ancient Greece from the age of Alexander the Great in the fourth century B.C. until Emperor Augustus consolidated the Roman hold over the eastern Mediterranean in the first century B.C. These three centuries saw the relationship between Rome and the Near East become most meaningful. Examines Alexander’s conquests, the states established by his successors (Ptolemies of Egypt and Seleucids of Syria), and the increasing intervention of Rome.
Grading: CAS Graded
Repeatable for additional credit: No

CLASS-UA 267 History of Rome: The Republic (4 Credits)
Typically offered occasionally
In the sixth century B.C., Rome was an obscure village. By the end of the third century B.C., Rome was master of Italy, and within another 150 years, it dominated almost all of the Mediterranean world. Then followed a century of civil war involving some of the most famous events and men?Caesar, Pompey, and Cato?in Western history. The course surveys this vital period with a modern research interpretation.

CLASS-UA 701  Socrates and His Critics (4 Credits)
Despite having written nothing himself, Socrates is—if not the most influential—certainly one of the most influential intellectual figures in the Western tradition, for it is with Socrates, we are told, that “philosophy” seems first to move from natural history to an explicit concern for human affairs. Indeed, so great is the magnitude of this change that we continue to term earlier thinkers “pre-Socratic philosophers.” His stature is marked again in the name given to a distinctive form of philosophical literature, the Socratic discourse, and an approach to philosophical inquiry and instruction, the so-called Socratic method. In antiquity, importantly, he inspired Plato, Xenophon, the Stoics, the Skeptics, and the Cynics, beyond those thinkers stretching to influence in Rome and Judea...and four centuries before the presumed time of Jesus, Socrates had already suffered martyrdom for his idiosyncratic political and religious views. In modernity, his life both fascinates and repels the attention, notably, of Nietzsche; though criticisms of his mode of existence he had already endured in his own time at the hands of the comedian Aristophanes, among others. Given the state of the evidence, one can look only to the history of the reception of his thought to try to recover any sense of the “historical Socrates”; but we must likewise ask whether he does not perhaps exert a greater influence as a result of the reception of the doxography itself than for his actual intellectual contributions. In short, had Socrates never existed, would not the tradition essentially have had to create him, in its move from its origins to ethics and political philosophy? Even given that he did actually live, is what we have of him really just such a necessary fiction?

CLASS-UA 846  Virgins, Martyrs, Monks & Saints: Early Christianity (4 Credits)
What was it about Christianity that made it so popular in the ancient world? Was it the martyrs volunteering for public execution? Monks’ sexual renunciation? The isolation of hermits living on the tops of columns in the wilderness? Or perhaps orthodoxy and its politically divisive anxieties about heretics and Jews? In fact, all these things (and more) explain how a small Jewish messianic sect from Palestine became the dominant religion of the Roman Empire. This course will provide an introduction to the big questions in the history of early Christianity. The focus will be on early Christian literature, such as martyr texts, saints’ lives, and works of monastic spirituality and mysticism. Issues addressed will include the Christian reception of Greco-Roman antiquity, the origins of anti-Semitism, gender and sexuality in the early Church, and the emergence of Christian theology.
