Program Overview

For four decades, NYU has prepared students for successful careers as archivists, museum curators, documentary editors, cultural resource managers, historical interpreters, and media specialists. The program's Director, Professor Ellen Noonan, brings nearly 20 years of experience working in the field of public history and insures that the program is responsive to the needs of the ever evolving fields of archives and public history. Our courses (<https://wp.nyu.edu/nyuhistoryma/archives-and-public-history-courses/>) emphasize a solid grounding in historical scholarship, intense engagement with digital technologies, and project-based learning. And there's no better place to study archives and public history than New York City. Course instructors are working professionals in the field (<https://wp.nyu.edu/nyuhistoryma/aph-faculty-page/>), and students can choose to intern at one or more of the city's wide range of archival and public history institutions.
