

EUROPEAN AND MEDITERRANEAN STUDIES (BA)

Department Website (<http://as.nyu.edu/cems/>)

NYSED: 92352 HEGIS: 0310.00 CIP: 05.0106

Program Description

The European and Mediterranean Studies major and minor offer a dynamic, interdisciplinary approach to exploring Europe's politics, culture, and society. This program provides flexibility, allowing students to tailor their studies to their passions and academic interests by gaining an understanding of contemporary issues in the region, examining historical developments and how they have shaped contemporary Europe, and deepening their language proficiency in a European language. European and Mediterranean Studies majors and minors are encouraged to take courses at CEMS and in other departments where topics may focus on contemporary history, political science, international relations, cultural studies, regional studies focusing on the EU, Eastern Europe, the Mediterranean, and more.

All European and Mediterranean Studies majors are required to acquire fluency above the intermediate level in a major European language other than English and to study abroad, usually through one of NYU's European sites, to ensure a deeper understanding of a particular country in Europe or the Mediterranean region. The minor is especially well-suited to students majoring in European languages, the humanities, and/or social sciences, though students from all disciplines with an interest in Europe are welcome.

Both the major and minor are designed for students seeking preprofessional training for careers in public service, nonprofit organizations both at the international and regional levels, cultural institutions, international business and law, media, and education. The major and minor also provide a strong foundation for students interested in pursuing graduate studies.

Honors Program

To earn a degree in European and Mediterranean Studies with honors, students must complete ten courses (40 credits) and write a thesis paper. Students must complete the following steps:

- complete/be in progress to complete nine courses (36 credits) toward the major;
- maintain a GPA of 3.65 (both overall and in the major);
- consult with the EURO-UA 950 Contemporary Europe instructor to identify a thesis topic and faculty adviser, then notify the department program administrator to verify eligibility; and
- once honors eligibility is confirmed, enroll in EURO-UA 998

Independent Study (4 credits), which is the required tenth course for the honors program, and successfully complete original research leading to an honors thesis of approximately 40-60 pages in length. Students enroll in the independent study during the spring semester of their fourth year and are supervised by a program faculty member.

Admissions

New York University's Office of Undergraduate Admissions supports the application process for all undergraduate programs at NYU. For additional information about undergraduate admissions, including application requirements, see How to Apply (<https://www.nyu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-admissions/how-to-apply.html>).

Program Requirements

European and Mediterranean Studies is an interdisciplinary major.

Students are encouraged to choose courses from across the College and University as they plan their program of study; however, they must always consult with a department adviser to confirm that courses will count toward this major. Nine 4-credit courses (36 credits) beyond the introductory level that focus on Europe and the Mediterranean region must be completed with a C or better as outlined below:
