Department Website (<http://as.nyu.edu/sociology/>)

NYSED: 08423 HEGIS: 2208.00 CIP: 45.1101

Program Description

The discipline of sociology and the Sociology major at NYU examine how our individual lives are embedded in families, groups and social networks, neighborhoods and schools, and organizations and institutions. Sociologists focus on the ways in which our own biographies are influenced and constrained by broader social, political, and economic forces which can be very localized, but are increasingly global in scale.

We study sociology to understand the social world and to create change that will make it a better place. It is a discipline that gives students the tools to think critically about public issues of the day and to analyze many different kinds of evidence about the world that surrounds us. It pushes students to see the world differently, and to look beyond individuals to see the ways in which power, inequality, and social hierarchies operate beneath the surface of everyday life.

Honors Program

Students with both cumulative and major GPA of at least 3.65 (or who have permission of the director of undergraduate studies) may apply to our honors program. The honors program consist of two semesters (two 4-credit courses) over the span of one year (fall & spring).

The honors program in Sociology provides senior Sociology majors who meet the eligibility criteria the opportunity to graduate with honors by writing a thesis through the department's year-long Honors Seminar.

During their senior year, each honors student develops an original research project and writes a thesis based on that research. The Honors Seminar—led by a faculty member, with additional individualized support for students from a teaching assistant—prepares and guides the students through this process. Students also may have a mentor in another faculty member who advises them and oversees their work on the thesis.

Students may apply for the honors program in the spring of their junior year. Applications are announced via email to all sociology students and linked on our departmental website (<https://as.nyu.edu/departments/sociology/undergraduate/sociology-honors-program-.html>). In the fall of senior year, honors students register for the first term of SOC-UA 950 Senior Honors Research Seminar to develop and structure their research projects. In the spring of senior year, honors students take the second term of SOC-UA 951 Senior Honors Research Seminar and work under the supervision of their selected faculty adviser and/or instructor. For Sociology majors, the first term of SOC-UA 950 Senior Honors Research Seminar will be used to satisfy the capstone requirement. The second semester of SOC-UA 951 Senior Honors Research Seminar counts as one of the elective courses for the major. For GPH/Sociology major students, both semesters can be used to satisfy sociology electives. Students must complete both semesters to be eligible to graduate with honors.

Admissions

New York University's Office of Undergraduate Admissions supports the application process for all undergraduate programs at NYU. For additional information about undergraduate admissions, including application requirements, see How to Apply (<https://www.nyu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-admissions/how-to-apply.html>).

Program Requirements

The major in Sociology requires nine 4-credit courses (36 credits) as outlined below. All courses for the major must be completed with a grade of C or better.

<sup>1</sup> The foreign language requirement is satisfied upon successful completion through the Intermediate level of a language. This may be accomplished in fewer than 16 credits, but those credits must then be completed as elective credit.

<sup>3</sup> Please see honors program information on the department website (<https://as.nyu.edu/departments/sociology/undergraduate/sociology-honors-program-.html>).

<sup>4</sup> Students may substitute up to two social science courses taken in other departments with the approval of the director of undergraduate studies. The second semester of SOC-UA 951 Senior Honors Research Seminar counts as an elective for the major.

Graduate Courses Open to Undergraduates

Under special circumstances, courses offered in the sociology graduate program are open to qualified Sociology majors with the permission of the instructor. These can substitute for required sociology elective courses for majors or minors.

2. An understanding of the key ideas of leading sociological theorists, including Marx, Weber, Durkheim, Du Bois, and others.
3. Knowledge of the ways in which the field of sociology complements or intersects with other scholarly disciplines.
4. The ability to analyze data and employ both qualitative methods (ethnography, interviewing, archival research, and experiments) and statistical methods to conduct rigorous investigations of a wide range of social institutions and phenomena.
5. Expertise in one particular area of sociological inquiry, leading to a senior capstone (or honors) research paper.

Policies

Program Policies

Major Policies

Advanced Placement or other advanced standing credit in statistics does not satisfy the required course SOC-UA 302 Statistics for Social Research. This policy applies to students who matriculate in CAS in and after fall 2020.

Policy Applying to Transfer Students

Of the nine courses required for the major, transfer students must take at least seven (28 credits) in the College of Arts and Science.

NYU Policies

University-wide policies can be found on the New York University Policy pages (<https://bulletins.nyu.edu/nyu/policies/>).

College of Arts and Science Policies

A full list of relevant academic policies can be found on the CAS Academic Policies page (<https://bulletins.nyu.edu/undergraduate/arts-science/academic-policies/>).

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of program requirements, students are expected to have acquired:

1. An understanding of key concepts in the field of sociology, including class, status, capitalism, race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, culture, power, stratification, rationalization, anomie, alienation, etc.
