CHINESE LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE (MINOR)

Program Description

Students in the Chinese Language and Literature Minor will develop a basic understanding of Classical Chinese language and texts, modern and/or contemporary Chinese literature and literary theory, will learn the skills and conventions for literary criticism and analysis in Mandarin, and for applying Chinese language in various professional contexts.

Program Requirements

| Course | Title | Credits |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Required Courses | | |
| Select one of the following: | | 4 |
| CHIN-SHU 401 | Classical Chinese for Advanced Mandarin Learners | |
| GCHN-SHU 233 | Foreign Societies in Classical Chinese Writing | |
| Language in Context | | |
| Select two of the following: | | 8 |
| CHIN-SHU 408 | Introduction to Chinese Phonetics | |
| CHIN-SHU 410 | Written Chinese Discourse | |
| CHIN-SHU 415 | Introduction to Contemporary China I | |
| CHIN-SHU 429 | Chinese Business and Finance -- A Bilingual Introduction | |
| CHIN-SHU 500 | Chinese Topic Course: Contemporary Chinese Art and Fashion | |
| GCHN-SHU 283 | Reading and Viewing Modern China | |
| Chinese Literature | | |
| Select two of the following: | | 8 |
| GCHN-SHU 116 | Traditional Chinese Literature from the Beginning to 1911 | |
| HUMN-SHU 366 | Shanghai Stories | |
| GCHN-SHU 225 | Cultural (Mis)translations: China and the West | |
| GCHN-SHU 205 | Hong Kong Cinema | |
| Total Credits | | 20 |

For Language in Context courses, the language of instruction is Chinese. For Chinese Literature courses, the language of instruction may be Chinese or English, depending on the semester and the faculty. Students minoring in Chinese Language and Literature are strongly recommended to enroll in courses where the language of instruction is Chinese, if possible. Additional literature courses taught in Chinese will be added as they become available.

Policies
NYU Policies

University-wide policies can be found on the New York University Policy pages (https://bulletins.nyu.edu/nyu/policies/).

NYU Shanghai Policies

Additional academic policies can be found on the NYU Shanghai Academic Policies page (https://bulletins.nyu.edu/undergraduate/shanghai/academic-policies/).