SOCIAL SCIENCE (BA)

CIP: 45.0101

Program Description

Social scientists study human interactions among individuals, families, communities, nations, and the built and natural environments. Using a range of analytical, interpretive, and experimental tools from anthropology, economics, epidemiology, political science, psychology and sociology, social scientists seek to understand conflict and cooperation, epidemics of disease and poverty, social organization and social change, kinship and belonging, human development, systems of exchange, and other enduring questions at the center of our shared humanity.

Students who complete the Social Science major at NYU Shanghai will be prepared to pursue careers and advanced study in fields as diverse as anthropology, business, development, economics, education, environmental studies, journalism, law, psychology, political science, public health, public service, sociology, and social policy. The major offers students a unique opportunity to explore broad areas of social science research and thought, while also allowing a concentration in one of multiple tracks within the major. The Social Science major encourages interdisciplinary inquiry into the complex problems of our contemporary world and the cross- disciplinary exchange that is at the heart of many of the most interesting advances in social science research today.

Social Science majors at NYU Shanghai develop competence in a variety of research tools in two methods courses and complete two interdisciplinary core courses unique to the major. Social Science majors select two foundational courses in the social science disciplines, and three focus courses in one track to deepen their intellectual specialization (tracks include: anthropology, environmental studies, global public health, international relations, political economy, political science, psychology, sociology, or urban studies). China – its peoples and politics – is an important focus for teaching and learning in the major, but the Social Science Area is purposefully global in perspective and heterogeneous in the methodological and analytical scope of its course offerings. Social Science majors complete an independent research project as a senior year capstone.

NYU Shanghai students interested in a disciplinary focus in Economics are advised to pursue the Economics (BA) (https://bulletins.nyu.edu/undergraduate/shanghai/programs/economics-ba/) program instead of the Social Science major.

Admissions

New York University's Office of Undergraduate Admissions supports the application process for all undergraduate programs at NYU. For additional information about undergraduate admissions, including application requirements, see How to Apply (https://www.nyu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-admissions/how-to-apply.html).

Students who did not attend a Chinese-medium high school fulfill the Core language requirement by demonstrating proficiency of the Chinese language through the Intermediate level. Chinese speakers who did not attend an English-medium high school fulfill the Core language requirement through completion of EAP-SHU 100 English for Academic Purposes I and EAP-SHU 101 English for Academic Purposes II. Additional information can be found on the NYU Shanghai Core Curriculum page (https://bulletins.nyu.edu/undergraduate/shanghai/core-curriculum/#text).

2

While Calculus is not a requirement in the Social Science major, some methods course options and some focus courses do require Calculus as a prerequisite. Thus, students are encouraged to consider what courses and track they plan to take for the Social Science major and whether Calculus is a prerequisite.

3

Students who complete two Social Science Core Courses may use additional Core Courses to complete the Focus Courses requirement, if appropriate, for their approved choice of focus. The courses listed below serve as a sample of approved courses for these categories. Please discuss additional courses that may count toward these categories, including courses at other NYU sties, with an academic adviser.

4

Students may only fulfill 4 of the 8 required credits with SOCS-SHU 210 Statistics for the Behavioral & Social Sciences, MATH-SHU 235 Probability and Statistics, or BUSF-SHU 101 Statistics for Business and Economics. The remaining 4 credits must be from another course listed in the Methods Courses section.

5

Students must select one of the tracks listed in the table above in which to focus within the Social Science program. Students may also petition to self-design an interdisciplinary track with prior approval of the track and the focus courses for the track from the Undergraduate Coordinator; approval for interdisciplinary tracks will not be granted retroactively.

6

Students must select one of the following tracks in which to focus within the Social Science program: Anthropology, Environmental Studies, Global Public Health, International Relations, Political Economy, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, or Urban Studies. Students may also petition to self-design an interdisciplinary track with prior approval of the track and the focus courses for the track from the Undergraduate Coordinator; approval for interdisciplinary tracks will not be granted retroactively.

7

Students complete SOCS-SHU 401 Social Science Senior Seminar course in their senior Fall semester, and SOCS-SHU 402 Social Science Capstone Seminar course during the Spring semester of their senior year. As part of the capstone seminar students conduct an independent research project in their track using the methods, theories, and data with which they have become familiar over the course of completing the major. The two capstone seminar courses must be completed in Shanghai.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this program, students will be able to:

1. Identify individual, cultural, social, economic, and political forces that shape our world, in both historical and contemporary perspective,

- with a demonstrated appreciation of China and its relation to the region and the world.
- Demonstrate a familiarity with social science approaches to the study of behavior, sociality, exchange, and governance.
- Use modes of inquiry found in professional literature as a means of evaluating social science problems.
- Compare concepts and methods to analyze substantive domains of social science study, including conflict, trade, family, environment, healthcare, and human rights.
- Engage in the collection and presentation of data from primary and secondary sources.
- Interpret data through various forms of evidence by employing qualitative and quantitative methods by means of appropriate research design, rigorous investigation, and critical analysis of a wide range of social phenomena.
- 7. Utilize skills developed through PLOs 1-6 to formulate a research question, identify primary and secondary sources relevant to the question, construct a research strategy to address the question in light of these sources, and carry out the research leading to a research-based product (e.g., written paper, oral presentation).

Social Science and Data Science Double Major Guidelines

For students pursuing double majors, there can be no more than two courses double-counted between the primary and secondary majors. Students who are interested in pursuing a Social Science major (with Political Science, or Psychology Track) along with a Data Science major (with concentration in Political Science or Psychology) have the option to double-count more than two courses between the majors. Students would need to complete course requirements for both majors. The following courses are allowed to double counted toward both majors:

Social Science (Political Science Track) and Data Science (Concentration in Political Science)

- SOCS-SHU 150 Introduction to Comparative Politics
- SOCS-SHU 160 Introduction to International Politics
- BUSF-SHU 101 Statistics for Business and Economics or MATH-SHU 235 Probability and Statistics

Social Science (Psychology Track) and Data Science (Concentration in Psychology)

- PSYC-SHU 101 Introduction to Psychology
- BUSF-SHU 101 Statistics for Business and Economics or MATH-SHU 235 Probability and Statistics
- · SOCS-SHU 350 Empirical Research Practice
- · Choose One:
  - SOCS-SHU 334 Legal Psychology or
  - · PSYC-SHU 234 Developmental Psychology or
  - · PSYC-SHU 352 Psychology of Human Sexuality
